

Parents Connection

Message from the Dean of Student Life

Dear Harvard College Parents and Guardians,

Winter Break is a time for unwinding, contemplation, and reconnection with friends and loved-ones. Some students get restless near the end of their time away and look forward to some low-key activities on campus without juggling classes and other term-time demands.

Wintersession provides an occasion to return to campus a little early for student-initiated and College-led programming. The vision of Wintersession has evolved to include an array of programs that broaden life skills; develop team-building capacities; and make time for aesthetic exploration. This year we will offer students the opportunity to engage “life’s big questions,” as we pilot programs on personal transformation led by some of Harvard’s most renowned and innovative thinkers on reflection, self-understanding, identity, purpose, activism, and leadership.

Your student should have a conversation with their adviser, proctor, tutor, or dean about Winter Break and what is the best plan for them. You will find more information about Wintersession and Winter Break in this newsletter.

Sincerely,

Stephen Lassonde Dean of Student Life

Plan Ahead!

Parents Webinar

October 29 at 2 p.m. EST

Join Harvard College Dean Rakesh Khurana and Dean of Freshmen Tom Dingman for the first in a series of College webinars for parents. This first webinar is aimed at parents of freshmen, ensuring everyone has the opportunity to learn more about their student's first semester, whether they are able to attend Freshmen Parents Weekend or not. Dean Khurana and Dean Dingman will take time to answer questions sent to deankhurana@fas.harvard.edu in advance of the event.
